

The heatmap displays a 20x20 matrix. The diagonal is dark blue, representing a value of 1.0. The off-diagonal elements are colored red or light red, representing values less than 1.0. The pattern of red elements is sparse, with a few clusters of higher values (darker red) and many zeros (white). The overall structure suggests a sparse matrix, possibly representing a network or a system with localized interactions.

